Overview

The Master in Export Management and International Trade has been designed by two prestigious institutions, Marconi University and the Institute of Export & International Trade in consultation with international trade experts.

In a globalized and complex context, the Master has been designed to meet the current needs of the market, aiming to train international trade managers in facilitating and optimizing international business transactions and ensuring the smooth flow of goods and services across borders.

To be effective in this role, managers and professionals should possess a combination of skills and knowledge, including:

- Ability to conduct market research to identify potential markets, assess market trends and address challenges related to export operations;
- Competencies in project planning, organization and execution to ensure successful export operations;
- Understand financial aspects related to international trade – including pricing strategies, currency exchange and payment terms – and of the modes for assessing and mitigating risks associated with international trade;
- Have a good working knowledge of international trade regulations;
Aptitude to build and maintain strong relationships with clients, distributors, buyers and partners, developing effective communication skills to interact with them in an effective way;
- Flexibility to adapt to different cultures, business practices and regulatory environments;
- Familiarity with export management software and tools, new technologies and social media and with artificial intelligence systems capable of optimizing internationalization strategies.

Modules

- Fundamentals of International Business
- Environmental Global Marketplace Analysis
- International Logistics, Purchasing, Distribution, Transportation & Documentation
- International Trade Management & Marketing Strategy
- Legal, Finance & Risk Management
- Export Management in the age of Digitalisation: How to find Customs and Commercial Partners

Project work

At the end of the Master's program, students will present a project work during a plenary session, with topics assigned by the Scientific Committee of the Master. While students will primarily work independently on their projects, they are encouraged to seek guidance or clarification from the teaching staff via email if necessary. Additionally, each student will be allocated up to 5 hours for one-to-one meetings with faculty members to finalize their project work, which typically ranges from 40 to 60 pages. Specific formatting guidelines will be provided at a later date.

The assessment and grading of the project work will be conducted by a committee comprised of three professors or members of the Scientific Committee, including the project work supervisor.

Upon completion of the Master's program, the transcript will include the final score according to both the UK and Italian grading systems.
